

Audrey Yap

---

‘Conceptual Engineering, Neurath’s Boat, and a Return to the Political Roots of Logical Empiricism’

Abstract: N/A

Readings:

Yap, Audrey. 2010. “Feminism and Carnap’s Principle of Tolerance”, Hypatia 25 (2), 2010, 437–454.

Okruhlik, Kathleen. 2004. “Logical Empiricism, Feminism, and Neurath’s Auxiliary Motive.” Hypatia 19 (1): 48–72.

Cartwright, Nancy, and Thomas Uebel. 1996. “Philosophy in the Earthly Plane.” In Encyclopedia and Utopia: The Life and Work of Otto Neurath (1882-1945), edited by Elisabeth Nemeth and Friedrich Stadler, 39–52. Kluwer Academic Publishers.

Richardson, Alan. 2007. “Carnapian Pragmatism.” In The Cambridge Companion to Carnap, 295–315. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press.

Audrey Yap is an Associate Professor of Philosophy at the University of Victoria, which stands on unceded Lekwungen territory. She works primarily in feminist philosophy, and has written on gendered violence and epistemic injustice, though she was trained as a historian and philosopher of mathematics. Together with Roy Cook, she is co-editing a volume on feminist philosophy and formal logic.

Selected Publications:

“The Logical Syntax of Prejudice: Oppression and the Relative a Priori”, forthcoming in Feminist Philosophy and Formal Logic, edited by Roy Cook and Audrey Yap.

“Feminist Radical Empiricism, Values, and Evidence”, Hypatia 31(1) (Winter 2016): 58-73
(<https://onlinelibrary.wiley.com/doi/abs/10.1111/hypa.12221>)

“Feminism and Carnap’s Principle of Tolerance”, Hypatia 25(2) (2010): 437-454
(<https://onlinelibrary.wiley.com/doi/abs/10.1111/j.1527-2001.2009.01080.x>)